

ABSTRACT

Instrument for the treatment of the apical portion of radicular dental canals, has a conical shaft (1) having at least one helicoidal working ridge. The active anterior portion (2) of the instrument is comprised of at least two successive cones whose opening ( ,X) decreases from the anterior point (3) of the instrument in the direction of its active posterior portion.